Office of Governor Doug Ducey Makes Gift of Impact to Maggie's Place

December 29, 2022 (Phoenix, AZ) - Maggie's Place is proud to announce that through a grant from the Office of Governor Doug Ducey, the nonprofit will expand opportunities for homeless and pregnant mothers to access safe, affordable housing, employment assistance and workforce development opportunities.

"Over the past eight years, we've prioritized equipping Arizona's vulnerable populations with access to resources and services that enrich their lives to build a better future," said Governor Ducey. "This investment in Maggie's Place will allow more moms, babies and families to pursue opportunities to build stability and independence."

Founded in 2000, Maggie's Place provides safe housing, resources and services to support homeless, pregnant and parenting mothers throughout the Phoenix metro area. With more than 1,100 mothers in the Maggie's Place alumni community and more than 750 babies calling a Maggie's Place home their first home, the funds received from the Office of the Governor are vital in continuing to provide families the essential resources needed to maintain safe housing and ensure access to employment.

"We are so thrilled to receive the grant from the Office of Governor Doug Ducey" said Laura Magruder, Maggie's Place CEO. "It will change the lives of the mothers and babies we serve and give us the opportunity to help even more mothers in our community."
